

Position paper Guidelines

Delegates are highly encouraged to submit one position paper. Position papers serve as a reminder for individual delegates of their country or organization's views regarding the topics of discussion throughout the conference, as well as a source of information and research that can be used by each delegation. On the final day of the conference, awards of "Best Position Paper" will be determined.

Position papers should provide a concise overview of the viewpoints of each delegation regarding the theme and should establish recommendations for sub-themes and points of discussion before the committee begins.

WHO Ambassadors:

International and regional conventions, treaties, declarations, resolutions, past and present programs of action which are relevant to the policy of your State should be addressed in the position paper. Moreover, delegates should consider the powers, viewpoints, and policies of other nations in its region--as well as the relationship between those nations--in choosing sub-themes to discuss.

NGO/Media Roles:

Position papers should outline your organization's viewpoint of the topic at hand and approaches they have taken in the past to address or participate in global health innovation and the sub-themes. Consider the influence of your organization's viewpoints and actions in shaping global decisions, and the impact that you hope to bring to the conference.
